The Farm will be awarded to the contestant securing the most votes in the entire contest.

The Piano will be awarded to the contestant standing next highest in number of votes in the contest.

Votes may be clipped from the paper or secured on subscription. The nomination counts for 5,000 votes for contestant nominated.

No person will be permitted to buy papers in bulk for the purpose of clipping coupons, but there are no restrictions as to the sources from which you may gather the votes. Interest all of your friends, relatives, neighbors, etc., in saving the coupon ballots for you or sending them to the Contest Department.

County Notes

Prof. P. M. Brandt of the Dairy Department, University of Missouri will be in the county the second week in April.

A meeting of farmers of the Cross Roads (Crump) neighborhood, will be held at the schoolhouse, Thursday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. This will be a general "get-together" meeting and everyone is invited to attend. Organization will be discussed and the advisability of forming a local club decided.

Farm Adviser.

The Horticultural Department of the State College of Agriculture will give a demonstration in spraying the orchard. The actual work will be done in Dr. G. S. Henderson's orchard at Jackson. Mr. Talbert will be in charge. The demonstration will be given March 21 at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Everyone interested is urged to attend; it is free, and furthermore, there is no doubt but that successful fruit growing in this section means spraying. It is necessary not only for fruit production but to preserve the life of the trees.

STATEMENT OF FACTS REGARDING CONTEST

HOW TO GROW CORN

Corn-Growing Interest Farmers of Southeast Missouri.

Many response and inquiries are coming into Seth Babcock, secretary of the Southeast Missouri Normal School Acre Yield Contest from all parts of the Third Normal School District point to three things: 1st, that the interest in corn growing is greater than ever before; 2nd, that time is going to be more extensively used this year on the soils than any previous year; 3rd, that there is a widespread demand for information found in the Bulletin of the Agricultural Department on the Normal School at Cape Girardeau. More corn in Southeast Missouri.

Here are some of the requests: Henry Dittmer, Hillboro: "Send me your corn growing bulletin." Edwin Boly, Poplar Bluff: "Tell me how to raise corn." F. I. Ernst, Biehle: "Please send me booklet." A. W. Groves, Nixa: "Anything of interest to farmers." F. B. Griffith, Chicago: "Please send me booklet on how to raise 150 bushels of corn per acre." F. C. Baker, County Superintendent, Froedektown: "Please send me 250 enrollment cards for the corn contest." W. L. Baker, Kennett: "Want to enter your acre yield contest." Walter E. Chaney, Warrensburg: "Please send me details of your corn growing contest." C. E. Evert, Quincy, Ill.: "Please send me your plan to grow 150 bushels of corn to the acre." County Supt. E. D. McAnally, Kennett: "Please send enrollment blanks for Southeast Missouri Corn Show."

TWELVE REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD SOW PEAS AND THEN MORE PEAS.

1. They are fairly good human food.
2. They are one of our most nutritious feeds for stock.
3. The peas alone are worth from $5 to $20 per acre.
4. Cowpea hay is easily worth $40 per ton. The yield varies from one to three tons per acre.
5. If left on the land and turned under, the vines are worth from $5 to $35 per acre as fertilizer.
6. The roots and stubble are worth from $2 to $4 per acre as fertilizer.
7. The vines, roots and stubble furnish humus (vegetable matter), something nearly all soils are deficient in.
8. This humus helps to make the land cultivate easily, absorbs and holds moisture that will aid a crop to continue its growth during a drought, and furnish the conditions necessary for the existence of beneficial bacteria that enable plants to get nitrogen from the air.
9. The shade of peavines helps in the formation of valuable nitrates in the soil.
10. Peavine roots are good subsoilers. They go to considerable depths, opening up the earth so air and water can make a deep soil.
11. Cowpeas fit in well in nearly all systems of rotations of crops. They are well adapted to growing among corn and after small grain harvested in the spring.
12. Peas get some of their nitrogen from the air, free of cost to the farmer. Nitrogen in commercial fertilizers cost about 40 cents per pound.

Nearly everything and more about cowpeas is also true of soy beans. The beans excel in being a little more valuable as stock feed, stand droughts some better and usually make slightly larger yields of grain and hay. C. R. Hudson.

SWAT THE CINCH BUG NOW.

In the past sixty years the cinch bug has probably caused a loss considerably in excess of $350,000,000 to American farmers. According to departmental experts, the pest is more effectively destroyed during the winter months than later when it has left its winter quarters. The burning of dry leaves and rubbish around the fields is the best method of destroying the bug in this season of the year.

Few insects have caused such enormous losses as the cinch bug. It is the most fatal pest that attacks our corn, wheat and other staple grains. It is not for the extreme susceptibility of the very young bugs to destruction by drenching rains and for the fatal effect of certain parasitic fungi on both the adults and the young, the practice of raising grain year after year on the same area would become altogether unprofitable in the United States.

The department of agriculture furnishes, on application, two pamphlets regarding this dreaded pest. One is a circular entitled "The Cinch Bug" and the other "Cinch Bug investigations West of the Mississippi River."
